Announce Award Of Rhodes Scholarship To McGill Student

David C. P. Lloyd, Med Student, Successful Candidate

TO STUDY PHYSIOLOGY

Phibert L'Ecuier Of Laval University Other Winner

David Francis Lloyd, B.Sc. '32, now in med 2, son of Professor F. E. Lloyd of McGill, was awarded one of the two Rhodes Scholarships annually allotted to the Province of Quebec, it was announced today. The other was awarded to Phibert L'Ecuier, of Laval University at Quebec.

Last year McGill gained two of these scholarships, the winners being Dave Lewis, and Munro Bourne, both of whom are now studying at Oxford; and the previous year, Ken Cameron was the successful McGill candidate.

Enviably Record

The winner this year possesses an enviable record. He first attended Montreal High School, but owing to illness did not graduate from there, subsequently he was privately tutored and entered McGill with high standing. He obtained his B.Sc. in Arts, and won the Hiram Mill's award in Biology in 1930. At present he is in second year medicine. As the result of winning the scholarship, he will study in England next year, specializing in Physiology under Sir Charles Sherrington, a winner of the Nobel Prize.

Phibert L'Ecuier, graduated from St. Hyacinthe, obtaining his B.A. degree there; he is now doing post graduate work in Chemistry at the University of Laval, in Quebec.

Radio Enthusiasts Discuss Problems

Alex Reid And J. C. Stadler Address Gathering On Current Conditions

Members of the McGill Radio Association and the Westmount Radio Club met at the Union Grill Room, last Friday night, to discuss the various difficulties encountered in transmission, and to exchange ideas on the subject. The main speaker of the evening was Mr. Alex Reid, Canadian General Manager of the Amateur Radio League.

Mr. Reid presented a report of the recent Madrid Conference at which the amateur status came up for consideration. Canada was the only country to propose an extension of the range of frequency wave for amateurs. However, presumably due to the adverse pressure of the commercial interests the proposal was withdrawn. Conditions, therefore, as far as amateurs are concerned, remain the same as before.

J. C. Stadler, VE2AP, Sections Manager of the A.R.L., then outlined to the members the aim of the league—traffic control on the air. An attempt was being made to form a network for the transmission of messages between different points in Canada. More amateur stations were requested to co-operate with this attempt and join the network.

Attention was drawn to the admirable work of Earle Turner, VE2CA, in keeping up communications with station GUSA, Los Angeles, during the recent Olympic Games. Refreshments were then served, with an animated discussion following.

Desperate Plot To Entice Ping Pong Stars Revealed

The fruits of long and assiduous practice can now be reaped, by the individual who has applied himself with unceasing toil to the thrilling and breath-taking game of the century—Ping-pong! If this person has attained the peak of perfection, made possible only through practice, he may answer the urgent call that appeared in Friday's Daily, asking for "one extremely capable ping-pong player, to complete the roster of a team."

"Only the best need apply," adds the notice, implying this team is a top-ranking one, traveling only in the Big League circles. Therefore any small-town, who has heretofore only at-

Carols And Songs Feature Of S.C.M. Meeting Yesterday

CAROL singing, red candles, sea-sonable refreshments and a roaring fire, added to an abundance of good spirit, could not fail to produce a lively Christmas atmosphere at the S.C.M. Open House last night. A large number of McGill students and their friends came to Strathcona Hall to make the final meeting of this year a great success.

The singing was directed by the Rev. Dr. Philip Matthews who filled the "breathing spaces" with his ever-ready, witty remarks, which were appreciated by all.

During the evening it was announced that the S.C.M. has planned a "hard times" party to be held on the 6th of January. At this novel gathering old clothes must be worn, the refreshments will be of a nature suitable to the depression, and the cost of admission will also be in keeping with the times, being somewhere between eleven and seventeen cents. It is expected that this party will be well attended owing to the reasonable price which will be especially suitable so soon after the New Year.

Professor N. N. Evans Describes McGill Fifty Years Ago

FEW AMUSEMENTS Lack Of Co-Eds, Cabarets, Radios, Encouraged More Study

Last Friday evening over station OKAC, sponsored by the McGill Graduates Society, Professor N. N. Evans, B.A.Sc. '86, M.Sc. '92, present professor of chemistry at McGill, gave a delightful glimpse of the university as it existed fifty years ago.

Students in those days could indeed boast of their labors, for there were few, if any, of the present-day distractions. The life of a student seems to have been one of almost perpetual study, with athletics taking only a second-rate place. Cabarets and such amusements were likewise unknown, and perhaps saddest to relate, no young co-eds graced the campus grounds.

Few of the present imposing buildings of the university would have been seen in the good old days, and the stately Roddick gates were supplanted by a somewhat rickety wooden fence.

In those days, of Dr. Dawson's principality, a spectator might have noticed his particular garden gracing the east side of the avenue. Here the doctor was wont to spend many hours in his duties as principal, he also had charge of all the botany, geology and zoology in the calendar.

The main building used after its reconstruction at the Arts Building, looked much the same as it does today. Here almost all the academic work of

Indoor Rifle Club

At a meeting of the Indoor Rifle Club held yesterday in the Engineering building it was decided that meetings should henceforth be held on Thursday instead of Saturday afternoons. The reason for this decision was to accommodate members who wish to go skating on Saturday. During the coming holidays the meetings will not be held, but there will be shooting at the Montreal High School Gym.

Noted Ohio Surgeon Lectures To Alpha Omega Alpha Group

Dr. G. W. Grile Spoke on "Diseases Peculiar To Civilized Man"

LONG RESEARCH

Cure Discovered By Observation of Cases Of 'Soldier's Heart'

That noted American surgeon, Dr. George W. Grile of Cleveland, in addressing a meeting held under the auspices of the Alpha Omega Alpha Society in the Biological Building, on Saturday evening, spoke on "Diseases Peculiar to Civilized Man." He stated that the tremendous intellectual drive which man has acquired in the course of his evolution is not an unmixed blessing.

Although a threefold "organ of civilization" has been provided to man by evolution, namely, the human brain, the hand, and the thyroid gland, he has not as yet been freed from the "fight or flight" mechanism, which was characteristic of his prehistoric ancestor. He is still obliged to meet such crises as a stock market crash or a university examination by these means.

Cause of Diseases

Dr. Grile attributed certain diseases peculiar to civilized man to this hiatus between his intellectual and his sympathetic nervous system, and showed how a new operating method which he had first tried out three years ago would uphold this conclusion. These diseases were hyperthyroidism, neurovascularasthenia and peptic ulcer. Investigation had revealed that they were not due to diet, climate, infection,

Independent Body Will Organize New Campus Magazine

Meeting This Afternoon In Union For All Interested

A HYPER-CRITICAL and literary magazine, sedulously eschewing all traces of pseudo-intellectualism, and to be run independent of any campus organization, is planned by a group of students at this university.

A preliminary meeting of all interested in being associated with this new venture, either in the selling, advertising or writing end, will be held this afternoon at 5.15 in the reading room of the McGill Union. Plans for the type, style and circulation of magazine will be discussed in all detail at this meeting.

At present the plans for the new publication on the campus are merely tentative. For many years there have been at this university very few means of expression for those able and willing to write, and for those whose knowledge of what goes on behind the scenes of campus activity is extensive. The columns of the McGill Daily, although open to all contributors are nevertheless under the supervision of the Students' Executive Council.

This new journal will be strictly independent of any and all organizations and will fill a need long-felt, since the fortnightly passed into limbo.

Sullivan Production Ended On Saturday

Choral Society's Operetta Finishes Successful Run

The McGill Gilbert and Sullivan Operetta and Choral Society finished off another production of those Victorian "perennials" on Saturday night with a performance of "The Yeomen of the Guard" that ran smoothly from beginning to end.

"The Yeomen" doesn't come up to "The Pirates of Penzance" or "The Mikado" for catchy tunes, but for those who like their Gilbert and Sullivan, it presents a pleasing and not-too-difficult-to-follow theme.

Jack Waud and Bob Freeman, as Shadbolt the jester and Jack Point the humorless jester, proved the hit of the show on Saturday night. The duet when Point is trying to teach Shad-

Dr. Collip Will Be Representative At Science Convention

DR. J. COLLIP, Professor of Bio-Chemistry at McGill will be the official McGill representative at the meeting of the American Association for the Advancement of Science, as was learned last week. The meeting will take place this year in Atlantic City and will be attended by representatives from all over the continent. The date will be December 27-29.

The meeting will be divided up into about ten sections, each one representing one branch of science. Dr. Collip will take part in the Medical Science section. He is expected to leave for this meeting on or about the 25th of the month.

Although Dr. Collip is the only official representative for McGill it is expected that many other McGill men will be in attendance, including Dr. Berrill of the Zoology Department. Though Dr. Collip is not on the program as a speaker, it is fairly certain that he will deliver several addresses in the course of the meeting.

Piratical Romance Depicted In Drama

About Three Hundred Children Attend Play Despite Cold

AUDIENCE THRILLED

Robert Douglas Gave Brilliant Portrayal Of "John Silver"

Not even the zero weather prevented some 300 eager children from witnessing the last performance of the dramatization of "Robert Louis Stevenson's novel, 'Treasure Island,' which was presented at Moyse Hall on Saturday afternoon. That the play merited this was obvious from the sincere signs of pleasure and thrills which not only the children but even the adults in the audience experienced throughout the presentation.

The play never for a moment lost its fascination and appeal, from the time Billy Bones was given the "Black Spot" to the time when Long John Silver and Jim Hawkins were, it seemed, in the merciless power of the avicious crew of the late Captain John Flint.

Robert Douglas gave an outstanding performance of the crafty, satirical yet genial Long John Silver. His actions and words emphasized by numerous and varied facial expressions and gestures were most convincing.

Billy Bones, portrayed by James Harvey was appealing as the kind though drunken mate of the late Captain Flint and one rather regretted his untimely end. He probably more than any one else in the cast, typified every boy's idea of a perfect adventurous drunken sailor.

Albert Hawes, succeeded in arousing the enmity and hatred of his enthusiastic audience in his portrayal of the

Frank Cott's Band Booked To Play At Arts Informal Hop

Dance Will Follow Harvard Game, Friday, December Twenty-Third

CABARET STYLE

Tickets on Sale From Class Officers At $1.00 Per Couple

The Ballroom of the Union will resound with the notes of Frank Cott's Orchestra at the Arts Hockey Informal which is to be held immediately after the Harvard-McGill Game on Friday, December 23. Frank Cott and his boys are not unknown to McGill students as they have just completed a successful season with the Maples, and the executive in charge assures all that good music will not be wanting.

This function is another undertaking of the Arts Undergraduate Society and all efforts are being made to retain the jollity and informality which has gained such popularity for their earlier entertainments this year. The Ballroom will be arranged in Cabaret Style with tables conveniently placed around the dance floor. Table service has been arranged for, so that refreshments may be obtained without any inconvenience.

Entertainment Planned

The plans for professional entertainment have not yet matured but the committee is endeavoring to obtain as good a floor show as possible. It is hoped that a more congenial atmosphere will be obtained by garnishing the bare spots of the Ballroom with appropriate decorations, and a special committee has taken this in

Junior Debaters Convene In Mock Parliament Today

Will Discuss The Annexation Of The States By Canada

THE Junior Debating League meeting this afternoon will take the aspect of a Mock Parliament. The Rt. Hon. John McLeish will lead his Parliamentary forces headed by his ministry of the Hon. Arthur I. Bloomfield, Minister of War and the Hon. Ben Shecter, Minister of Peace, on the resolution of "Resolved that Canada annex the United States."

The Opposition will be led by the Rt. Hon. John Peacock who will be supported by his ministry. The Hon. L. M. Poch will head the Farmer-Socialist aggregation. The audience has the liberty of sitting with either side of the House but it is expected that the majority present will be "again the Government." The Hon. El Kelloway will be the Speaker of the House.

This meeting, which will be the last of the current year, will be held at 4.15 in the Music Room of the Union. The executive hope that a large crowd of members will be in attendance.

Speakers will be given a limited time in which to harangue, and the Speaker of the House recently gave notice that any member who shows a tendency to drift toward the subject in question will be ejected from the session.

Children Fascinated By History Exhibits

History, which to school children has always been a dead subject, existing only in text books, has become a fascinating and living reality, owing to a series of special exhibits on Canadian History which are being held in McCord Museum.

Last month over 3,000 students visited the first of these series and it is expected that this month's exhibit will draw an even larger crowd. The exhibits have been lined up with the work of the fifth and sixth grades in the public schools, the current one including material on the Hudson's Bay Company, Champlain and daily life in the homes and missions of New France.

There are many singularly interesting places on exhibit. There are arrows which the Iroquois actually fought with; pieces from the clothing worn by the settlers; the chairs they sat on and the snowshoes they travelled on.

Red Sextette Defeats Yale And Harvard Decisively

McGill Team Take Games on Successive Nights By 3-0 And 4-2 — Redmen Show Brilliant Form in Dual Victory — Overpowering Attack Checks Yale — Tougher Opposition Presented by Harvard — McGill Broke 2-2 Tie To Win — Farquharson, Farmer And Nels Crutchfield Play Well.

BOSTON, Mass., December 17.—(Special to McGill Daily)—Playing consistently good hockey with occasional flashes of actual brilliance, Dr. Bobby Bell's Red hockey machine defeated on Friday night the rugged and hard-checking Yale team by 3-0, and followed suit with a well-earned victory over the Harvard Crimson at the Boston Gardens tonight. Although the score at the latter game was only 4-2, the Redmen were undoubtedly superior to the Bostonians, and carried the play to them throughout the game. The performance of McGill in both games was highly gratifying for, although the first period in each case was unproductive of goals, the Redmen opened fire in the following session, and demonstrated clearly their stickhandling and puck-carrying abilities, as well as their competence to check back in approved fashion.

SEEN FROM THE PRESS-BOX

As may be imagined, the Red team was highly elated to take both games from two such hard teams as Yale and Harvard. Harvard appears to be the more dangerous opponent though Yale is improving with every game, and it—rather, when the Ellys visit McGill next year, the resulting contest should be a "natural."

Ass't Manager Baldwin Terry of Yale took excellent care of the McGill team, conducting them personally throughout the Yale Campus and buildings, and even coming down to Boston in his Lizzie to cheer for the Red team.

The McGill team was afforded a marvellous sight, when they were taken through the new Payne Whitney Gymnasium. This gym consists of eight floors and a solarium, each floor space as large, in each case, as the

Classmates Mourn Gatehouse's Death

Delegation Appointed To Attend Funeral And Send Wreath

Members of Art's '34 gathered last Friday at a special meeting, to pay tribute to the memory of a late classmate, Wallace Gatehouse.

A resolution was proposed by the President, Bill Taik, that the sincere condolences of the members of the class be expressed to the parents of the deceased student. The resolution was unanimously adopted. A delegation was appointed to attend the funeral and to tender the memorial to the late student's parents.

A floral tribute in the form of a wreath, was sent, dedicated to the memory of one who was a "scholar and a sportsman."

A discussion of the financial difficulties of the class followed. The executive of the class claims that class fees are being withheld by the members intentionally or otherwise.

D. Goodman then addressed those present upon the advantages of attending and lending their full-fledged support to the Arts Hockey Informal. This blessed event is scheduled to take place this Friday night, December 23rd, after the McGill-Harvard hockey game. Tickets may be obtained from D. Goodman, in person, whose shadow obscures the light in the Arts Building at all times. The meeting then adjourned.

Reduced Rates Offered

Students are again reminded that both Canadian railway companies are offering reduced rates for students over the Christmas holidays. Return rates of one and one-quarter times the regular single fare enable many out-of-town students to return home over the vacation.

Dr. Fleming in Radio Address

Dr. Grant Fleming, Director of Public Health, will be the speaker on the Graduates' Society's broadcast this evening over station OKAC. The address will commence at 8.15 p.m. Dr. Fleming will speak on "Education and the Public Health."

McGill Beats Yale

A small crowd of less than a thousand spectators attended Friday night's game at the New Haven Arena, due to the fact that only a handful of students remained at the university, the rest having left for an early Christmas vacation. Those that were present, however, applauded enthusiastically every Ellsally into McGill's territory, and acclaimed many Red efforts. It was the fine work of Snyder in the Yale nets that kept the score down to 3-0 for, though the play was rugged throughout—and the quality of the hockey consequently poorer—McGill held the Ellys bottled up in their territory for the greatest part of each period.

The game started fairly evenly, with Yale returning rush for rush. Neil Crutchfield centred off with Rodd, and was flanked by his brother Gordie and Jack McGill. Gordie took the puck and tried Snyder with a long shot, which the latter handled easily. Many more long shots during the course of the game went for naught due to the airtight goaling of Snyder.

There remained barely five minutes of play in the first period, when Jack McGill received a pass from Shannagnessy, circled the Yale rearguard on the left, and banged home a shot that was well nigh unstoppable. At that moment, however, Captain Fletcher of Yale called the Referee Foley's attention to the fact that his stick had broken and, in so doing, fouled a McGill man.

Goal Disallowed.

Foley blew his whistle, disallowed McGill's goal, but penalized Fletcher. There appeared to be some discrepancy in this action, which the fans were quick to note. The Redmen now tried to take advantage of Yale's two penalties, but were unsuccessful. Period over, McGill 0; Yale 0.

The second period saw McGill continue where they left off. This time, however, they were more successful for, after five minutes of play, Farmer scored on Gordon Crutchfield's pass from the wing. The shot slipped by Snyder, and appeared to be a bit of hard luck for Yale. Farmer kept up the pressure and worked like a beaver to increase McGill's lead. Melickjohn and Farquharson combined well, but Snyder saved the latter's shot. Jack McGill's effort, too, was saved by him.

Neophytes Featured In Workshop Plays

Three Plays To Be Presented At R.V.C. Tonight At 8.30

Tonight at 8.30 in the R.V.C. Common Room the second set of Workshop plays will be presented, as a climax to three weeks of strenuous rehearsing. The cast is composed entirely of recruits to the Players' Club, who, judging from their performances at the final dress rehearsal, will undoubtedly make this production worthy of its predecessors.

It is felt that student interest has been sufficiently aroused to merit three performances. These will take place tonight at 8.30 and tomorrow at 5 o'clock and at 8.30 p.m. Three exceptionally good plays have been chosen and are expected to prove popular with the student body. These are: "What Have You," by N. Importe, "Cheese" by Lord Dunsany, directed by Fraser Macquodale, "Wuzel-Fum-mery" by A. A. Milne, directed by Harriet Colby. It was divulged last night that "N. Importe" is Edward Stikeman, who directed the play himself.

Admission is free as is usual at Workshop productions.

Rhodes Scholarship

ANNOUNCEMENT was made Saturday by Colonel Gilbert Stairs, Secretary of the Selection Committee for the Province of Quebec, that David C. P. Lloyd, of second year medicine at McGill, had been one of the successful candidates for the Rhodes Scholarship for the Province of Quebec. David Lloyd is a son of Prof. F. L. Lloyd, President of the Royal Society of Canada and Director of the Biological Building at McGill. He has had a noted scholastic career at McGill and is a graduate in Science and winner of the Major Hiram Mills Scholarship in Biology for 1930. He has been doing special study in physiology under Dr. John Beattie and will continue this work at Oxford under Sir Charles Sherrington, Nobel Prize winner and noted British physiologist.

We extend to him our congratulations on winning this high honor.

Our Advertisers

AS the half year rolls to an end and the "Daily" has only one more issue to turn out before the Christmas season, we pay a humble tribute to the people who are our real sponsors in an effort to give the students a daily paper.

More words such as these can do little to show our real appreciation to these men and women in a concrete way. Our only aim is to bring this one fact before the attention of the student body at large and that is, that without the backing of these enterprises whose advertisements appear in our columns a "Daily" would not be possible. The question is, just what are we driving at?

Support our advertisers as they support us. Give them your patronage whenever and wherever possible. Put their relations with us on a strictly business basis give them money for money. With the Christmas season in full swing and the usual number of gifts still to be bought, despite the advice to buy early, remember the ones who advertise in the columns of this paper when you make your purchases.

Our intention is not to write an endless drivel on sane relations with advertisers but to state authoritatively that business dealings with these people has all the hall marks of good salesmanship. As with all other commercial enterprises the "Daily" is feeling the effects of the much-discussed depression. The students have it in their power to help in a difficult situation; after all if the Daily has a deficit the students have to meet it. So again we say, Patronize our advertisers.

When to Stop

IT is said that some speakers never know when to stop; this seems to be only too true at McGill. Several lectures, professors and even heads of departments in this university seem to think that a maximum of two minutes is all that is required to make a cross-country rush from, let us say, the top floor of the Physics Building to the top floor of the Arts Building. After twenty minutes of discussion on a subject that is altogether irrelevant to the subject that is being studied the professor holds the whole class until at least eight minutes after the bell has sounded before dismissing it.

Should it so happen in the hypothetical case that we have chosen that the professor scheduled to lecture at the top floor of the Arts Building has an uncanny sense of punctuality it is just too bad for the poor student who cannot at least equal the quarter-mile Intercollegiate track record. Nor can we forget the student who is doomed to eat a cold meal every noon because some lecturer or teacher insists on holding his class from twenty past twelve until twenty past one.

Most professors insist that students should be punctual and they could well reciprocate by dismissing the class as punctually. It is not always because students are bored that they become restless after the bell sounds but simply because the lecturer refuses to give credit for attendance at the next lecture unless they are on time. After all students are not human airplanes.

The London School Of Economics

Though the London School of Economics and Political Science was founded as late as 1895, it is now recognized as one of the leading centres for graduate work and research in these subjects. The high reputation which it has achieved in academic circles has been gained largely through the deserved prominence of the members of the faculty in encouraging research and investigation, particularly in the fields of political and economic theory.

Many of the members of the present faculty need no introduction to Canadians. Included in this number are such well-known men as Sir William Beveridge (the Director of the School), Sir Josiah Stamp (who recently investigated trading in grain futures in Canada), Professor T. E. Gregory (outstanding authority on monetary problems), and Lord Passfield (Sydney Webb), one of the founders of the School.

Others, well-known to all students of Economics, are: Professors L. Robbins, F. A. von Hayek, Arnold Plant, and J. Coatsman, who was one of the advisers to the British delegation at the Ottawa Conference. Two of the outstanding professors in the Political Science division were at one time on the staff of McGill University, namely, Professors Harold Laski and Herbert A. Smith.

The increasing number of Canadian graduates doing research work at the London School is indicative of the prestige with which it is regarded. Many who formerly went to American universities for post graduate work are now coming to London. Out of the 3000 students in attendance at the School this year over 300 are doing graduate work. From the McGill Department of Economics and Political Science alone there are seven which indicates the growing popularity of London.

The variety of subjects which are treated at the School gives the student the opportunity of making a thorough investigation of the special piece of research in which he is engaged. There are over 400 courses given, covering Analytical and Applied Economics, Geography, History, International Relations, Law, Sociology, Statistics and Transport. At least two years of resident study in London are required in order to qualify for a higher degree.

Movie Reviews

Palace Theatre

"Life Begins," at the Palace, is a little may-kish for the male members of the audience, but found great favour with the female members. The scene is laid in a hospital and there is not much plot and too much tendency to reveal heart throbs and a little bit of Laugh Clown, Laugh, when the mother learns to love her babies and sings Frankie and Johnny to prove it. The photography is not bad.

The so-called Canadian Pathe News with all the latest scenery from the fair republic to the south of us and no mention of Canada and is none the better for all that.

A dancing travelogue relieves the tension of a Morton Downey sinologue and the program concludes with a rousing cheer to the antics of Charlie Chase in "Now You Tell One," a fine comedy which balances a little the heavy bathos of the feature picture.

—Ramsbottom Horsley.

Capitol Theatre

Humour and pathos — with plenty of each — mingle in this week's presentation at the Capitol. "Too Busy to Work" shows the inimitable American humorist Will Rogers in the somewhat pathetic role of a tramp who devotes his most conscientious efforts to the evasion of any form of manual labour. Marian Nixon adequately provides the necessary love interest.

In the second picture the scientific methods of Sherlock Holmes are pitted against the "elementary, my dear Watson" cases of previous pictures, but against ultra-modern London criminals who employ all the paraphernalia of Chicago gangsterdom. Olive Brook provides zest to a part in which he seems at home but he shares master-minding honors with the clever, vengeful criminal, Ernest Torrence. A news feature and a pictorial travelogue complete the bill.

—J.A.N. and F.F.V.

Loew's Theatre

Try a dose of Stuart and Lash "Believe it or Nuts," at Loew's this week for curing gloom and sadness that the exams may bring on. Two versatile fellows who do everything from hi-de-ho to a Mills Brothers to gags in the Ferrelman manner.

One of the jokes: Enter a dame! (good-looking).

Says Stuart — sotto voce: Ask her if she's married.

Says Lash — to the dame: Are you married?

Says the dame: That's my business.

Says Lash — with a Horsey sneer: Would you consider selling out?

Carl Shaw does some dancing that evidently the Montreal censors haven't seen yet. Advice — see it before the censors do. Everett Sanderson and Co. — not very funny. Janet May — female acrobat. Phooey!

There is also a moon picture on the bill at Loew's as usual. This week Tallulah Bankhead sinks from 12 millions — count 'em — twelve, to walking the streets. Robert Montgomery keeps her company on her downward trail. All very pathetic, but rather too bad that Robert Montgomery, who is rather a likeable young fella, should have to waste his talents playing with Tallulah, who, after all, is nothing but an American Senator's daughter.

Ho Hum — well Joan Bennett is coming next. —E.H.C.

Princess Theatre

Two mediocre pictures form the program at the Princess Theatre this week.

The better one is "The Crusader" featuring H. B. Warner, a story of a hard-bolled newspaperman and a conscientious district attorney. The attorney's sister gets mixed up with a gangster, and his wife, who unknown to him was an ex night club hostess, undertakes to extricate her. She herself becomes involved and the newspaperman who is out to get the district attorney steps in.

Miraculously things sort themselves out with the district attorney showing an amazing inconsistency of character and forgiving his wife and sister, to achieve the conventional happy ending. It is a shame that such good acting should be wasted on so trivial a vehicle.

The other picture "Hearts of Humanity" featuring Jackie Searl is one sob from start to finish. Jackie does some magnificent acting, particularly in the crying sequences, while Jean Hersholt is magnificent as the benevolent and conscientious Jewish shopkeeper. Jackie's mother dies, then his father dies, then he gets sick, and each sorrowful moment is played up to the full by the director, to make a realistic though heartrending picture.

—A.A.M.W.

Cinema Imperial

"LE FILS DE L'AUTRE" (The first wife's son) and "CENDRILLON DE PARIS"

The first film would be an excessively tense drama were not the dialogue lacking in clearness. It is hard to follow it and if a word is missed, one loses the drift of the story. A woman, married to a rich American banker, falls in love during a trip to Paris with the son of the banker by his first wife. The husband hears the disagreeable truth but finally permits her to return to Paris to join her lover, his own son: strange morals! It seems to be the fashion nowadays to portray the irregular in human relations, and to covet one's neighbour's goods (or wife even) appears quite natural.

The second film is the accomplishment of the life-dream of a humble girl to marry a Prince Charming. Although she is engaged to the uncle of a young French Viscount, she loves the youthful nephew, and he marries her in his uncle's stead (under the principle: "Move off so I take your place.")

Photography is frequently defective and hard on the eyes. The plot is weak and the dialogue banal. Outside of that the programme is all right! —C.D.

Cinema de Paris

This week, the Cinema de Paris is offering revivals of the most popular pictures that have graced its screen during the past year. A new double bill is being shown each day, which will include the usual short features and news.

The Editor, McGill Daily, Sir:

As a very humble member of the Theological Unemployment Relief Committee, which initiated the Experimental Tea, may I have space to comment briefly on the witicism of it which appeared last Friday.

To begin with it is not a tea for Theologs. The feeble nature of the fun poked at the tea by the writer of the column led me to suspect why he was confused on that point. It was a Tea by Theologs for students and others. Of course we knew that there were some people at McGill who would react as the writer did. Our studies in abnormal and subnormal psychology led us to anticipate that. But we believed that most McGill students are normal and cheerfully sane, therefore we experimented, not with tea — but with the idea of raising money by an afternoon tea.

Of course, to the psychology of the writer on Friday, the question of raising money for the down and outs is a matter of humour. I once heard of a chap who was attending his grandmother's funeral, and a penny rolled off her sightless eye, and as the eyelid rose the chap went into convulsions of mirth. It was laughable to him. He is now comfortably residing at Verdun, and his natural strength has not abated — nor is his humour diminished.

Then as this is the first tea, where did the author get his information about "orgies of good fellowship." I am glad that the author is so much concerned about stomachs. It is unusual to say "you are free to do as you wish with our government, tariffs, art, but be careful about our stomachs." But it is refreshing to see the courage of that writer. Since his life is organized about his stomach he pleads for conservative treatment of that stomach. He used up twenty-two lines of space to do so. He neglected The League of Nations, The Oxford Group, the Manchurian situation, birth-control, differential calculus, and what have you, in order to do so. May I, as a Theolog, remind him that the Bible says of those whose god is their belly, "their end is destruction." May I ask him, through you, Mr. Editor, to be more manly, to risk his stomach in a good cause.

And then he spoke of the Theologs being prepared for tea-drinking. That "preparation" is a distinct necessity. I thank him for that. Theologs have for so long been regarded as rough-necks, coming to the service of God with callouses on their palms, (and hereafter halos on their callouses, and the honest sweat of the farmyard on their limited brows — that it is a relief to be accused of having ultimately to deal with a tea-ridden course of life.

Mr. Editor, when the writer to whom I refer, begins to read English at McGill, he will find a galaxy of noble and luminous souls addicted to tea-drinking. Not the least of whom, he will see to his amazement was the incomparable, the inimitable, the well beloved Dr. Johnson.

Yours truly, H. E. PARSONS.

A feature of this gym is a 50-ft. practice-pool suspended from the fifth floor and having no foundation. This pool is used solely for practices, another, smaller one on the ground floor being used for matches. This pool has a seating capacity of 2,200.

McGill had an official cameraman in the person of Bill Pugaley, who accompanied the Redmen as their sole, and most, rabid fan. Down in Boston we ran across several other McGill well-wishers, who cheered lustily at the slightest provocation. Notably among these was Eddie Broadhead, who came down from New York to see the game.

Powers was much disgruntled when the tying goal got past him in the second period of the Harvard game. Maurice did not get a full view of the Putnam, and commented volubly and graphically on the goal.

Dr. Bobby Bell's pep talks between periods certainly got the best out of his players. Coach Bell is a great advocate of Co-operation, Co-ordination and Combination.

VARSIITY RETAINS WATER POLO TITLE

Red Poloists Defeated By 7-3 Score

Championship Goes To Varsity On Round By 9 Goals To 6

MCGILL SQUAD PUT UP HARD STRUGGLE Two Overtime Periods Necessary To Decide Outcome Of Series

A BATTLING McGill squad went down to a 7-3 defeat at the hands of the University of Toronto water polo team in the final game of the inter-collegiate series. The Redmen forced the "T" outfit into 12 minutes of overtime play before bowing to superior condition of the Blue team. This victory gives Toronto a 9-6 victory on the round and allows them to retain the Hershorn Trophy for another year. It was a hard game for McGill to lose, as they were leading with just a half minute to go, only to have Ross of Varsity tie it up on a free throw from McCatty. Neither team could score in the first overtime period but in the final six-minute session the Blue team had a margin on the goal getting.

After two minutes of the first period, Davy opened the scoring on a pass from Swallow to tie the round. Both teams were putting their best into the play from the start and no further scoring was made in this period. The second period opened auspiciously with Stein tying the score with a fast shot. The Blueboys came right back however and McCatty picked up a loose ball to fool Wayland for the next goal in the play. Half time score—Varsity 2, McGill 1.

The third period proved slow with neither team able to break away. Close checking featured this stanza with the result that the score still stood 2-1 at three quarters time. The fourth frame provided the best play of the game. Stein tied up the score once more on a pass from French and it looked very much as if the Red team were going to finish the game one up on the round. With but 30 seconds to go, Ross scored for Varsity and the play was 3-2 for Toronto, thus tying the round at 5 all.

An overtime period was therefore necessitated but both squads fought so hard that no further scoring resulted. A second overtime period was then called and it was here that the Varsity aggregation broke loose to win the match and the championship. McCatty passed the Red goal three times and Davey once to bring the Varsity total to 7, while the Redmen only managed to retaliate with a single goal by French. Final score for the game was 7-3, while the round ended at 9-6.

The Red squad certainly held their own on the play throughout the five first periods but in the final frame, superior condition on the part of the Blueboys enabled them to win the game and thus retain the intercollegiate water polo championship, last held by a McGill team in 1930.

The scoring by periods is as follows:

First Period.
1. Toronto	Davy (Swallow)
Second Period.
2. McGill	Stein
3. Toronto	McCatty
Third Period.

McGill Meets Royals In Second Contest At Forum Tonight

Red Puckmen Can Take League Lead With Win

LOYOLA VS. VICTORIAS

IN tackling the fast travelling Royals sextette in the second game of the weekly J.A.H.A. doubleheader at the Forum tonight, McGill juniors will get the severest test of their present hockey season. The first game will be between Loyola and Victorias. However the McGill-Royals game is looked upon as the feature attraction of the evening and is scheduled to start at 8:30 o'clock.

Royals are regarded as the class of the local junior hockey league, having won their first three starts with little effort. McGill has also yet to be beaten and a correct estimate of the relative strength of both teams will be gained this evening when they meet for the first time.

Redmen Need Win
A victory for the Redmen would put them back in first place and would stamp them as being of real championship class. At present Royals are leading the league one point ahead of McGill and are most anxious to increase their point margin at the expense of the Redmen. Under the circumstances there is every indication of the game being one of the best in the J.A.H.A. schedule.

The league scoring statistics, released early last week, show that Phillip Watson, clever St. Francois centre-ice star, is leading the league with five goals and two assists for a total of seven points. Martin and Currie of the Royals, and Archambault of St. Francois are tied for second place with five points each. McLernon is the leading McGill man with four points to his credit.

under certain approved conditions may be held for three years. Literary and scholastic attainments are of primary importance in gaining one of these scholarships, but other qualities are also necessary. The character of the applicant is studied as to manhood, truth, courage, devotion to duty, sympathy, kindness, unselfishness and fellowship. Exhibition of moral force of character, the instincts to lead, and to take an interest in his schoolmates, as well as physical vigor, shown by interest in outdoor sports or in other ways are also required.

At the beginning of the century, Cecil Rhodes, accumulated a large fortune in the diamond mines of South Africa. When he died, he left a large sum of money to enable the leading students of the British Empire to continue their studies at a British University. Mr. Rhodes considered leadership as consisting of moral courage, interest in ones fellow men, and similar allied qualities. He expressly stipulated that the selected students be of good character, and of benefit to humanity.

EXCELLENT BOUTS FEATURE IN BOXING CARD FOR TONIGHT

Heavies Predominate In Lengthy Program At Field House

Bert Light's boxers make their final bow at the Field House tonight at 8 o'clock before breaking training for the holidays. A long card of fifteen bouts, and an exhibition fight between Light and Hugh MacGregor will feature the fifth weekly meet promoted by the genial Red mentor. All of the stars on the club's roster will be in action and in addition there will be several men making their first appearance in the ring.

The stern competition offered in these bouts has done much to condition the Red battlers and to prepare them for the Intercollegiate assault in Montreal on Feb. 17 and 18. The Redmen are pointing to this meet and expect to make one of their greatest showings in years. At present, Hugh MacGregor is the sole Intercollegiate champion on the squad.

Heavies Predominate
A plethora of knock-downs and hay-makers will feature the tourney as the heavier fighters predominate among the battlers lined up by the coach. Les MacGregor and Brenhouse are two of the outstanding mastodons who will attempt to do away with each other. However, the embroiled between Tam Fyshe and Berkowitz, the 118lb. gamecocks, will suffer little in comparison with that of the lumbering giants.

Members of the fair sex are informed that there is no restriction regarding their entrance to these bouts and that they are expected in large numbers. A good crowd is expected due to the proximity of the all-important Assault-at-Arms and to supply the necessary encouragement required by the fighters in their efforts to bring back the errant crown.

The program is as follows:
135 lbs.—Shearer (Y) vs. A. N. Other.
118 lbs.—Fyshe vs. Berkowitz.
155 lbs.—Hand vs. Archibald.
125 lbs.—Tannenbaum vs. Black.
145 lbs.—Swift vs. Crutchlow.
165 lbs.—Anglin vs. J. Murphy (Y).
135 lbs.—Hartfield vs. Jamison.
155 lbs.—Johnson vs. Glidea.
175 lbs.—MacGregor vs. Brenhouse.
155 lbs.—Corbett vs. McNutt.
118 lbs.—Sherry (Y) vs. D. Smith.
145 lbs.—Rosenburg vs. Finlay.
135 lbs.—McCarthy vs. Kirkpatrick.
Exhibitions—Bert Light vs. H. MacGregor; McLennan vs. Gilbert.

Basketeers Play In Scheduled Tilts

Arts I, Eng. IV, And Commerce I Victors In Play

CLASS basketball continues to provide close play in the various sections, with the end of the schedule approaching. On Friday three games were run off in the Montreal High school gymnasium with Arts I, Eng. IV and Commerce I being returned victors in the play. Most of the teams have completed their scheduled number of games, and the play-offs between the various sections will be held after the holidays.

The Arts I versus Dentistry I match was Friday's first tilt. The Classics were short several stars, but had no difficulty in downing their opposition, final score being 24-6. Orr for Arts, proved high scorer for his team netting ten points. At present the Arts I team has been undefeated in all their games and will probably be serious contenders for the final championship.

The next match saw Medicine I and third year Artsmen oppose each other in an exceptionally close affair. Neither team had much opportunity to score because of fine defensive work, and the final whistle declared the Sawbones victors by a single basket, score being 12-10. By this victory first year Meds likewise move into the head of their section.

The third game on Friday's program produced a bang-up basketball tilt between Engineering 4 and Commerce II. In this game sprawling tactics appeared to be the order of the day as every few minutes the play would result in some man being sent scrambling over the floor. However, a good time was had by all, with the Engineers proving victorious. A last minute rally on the part of Commerce almost put them up to their opponents, but it was to no avail, as the game ended before they could overtake their rivals. The score was 23-17 with Chennel for Engineering and Conklin for Commerce producing the best playing ability on the floor.

The Line-ups
The line-ups for Friday's games were as follows:
Dentistry I (6)—Guilboard, Cournoyer (3), Tomesi (1), Aemi (2), Mahoney, Hyams.
Arts I (24)—Hughes (1), Guadagni (4), Johnson, Mendelsohn (1), Orr (10), Levites (8), Mowat, Macfarlane.
Eng. IV (23)—Dural (4), Ramsdale

Red Intermediates Drop Close Contest In League Opener

Carsley And Wilson Combine For McGill's Only Score

BOTH GAMES FAST

RED INTERMEDIATES—THE West End Hockey League swung into action on Saturday evening with two games packed full of thrills and excitement. In the opening contest McGill dropped a close 3-1 decision to Trenholme Park, last season's champions while in the second game the Caughnawaga Braves made their presence felt with a 2-1 win over Adenacs. This being the inaugural evening of the league's second year a committee of hockey celebrities were on hand to send the players on their way with many good wishes. The puck was faced off by Howie Morenz, Canadian's speed champion, and Lionel Conacher, Maroon's rugged defence-man.

The Redmen started off with a rush and had it not been for the hard work of Walsh and Unsworth on the Trenholme Park defence the score might not have been what it was. On a pretty solo effort Parent missed a goal by inches when Daniels, who played a fine game in the nets for the West Enders, dropped to his knees to smother a beautiful corner shot that looked like a sure goal. The first goal of the evening came from a scramble in front of the Bellmen's nets when Shink banged in a pass from Unsworth giving Tennant, the McGillians' goalie no chance.

Combination Lacking
The Crimson Sextette fought back grimly and the period ended with the Purple-Clad squad coupled up in their own territory beating off a McGill rally. The play in the second frame was marked by much individual playing, neither team seemed to be able to get any kind of combination working. Carsley, the Redmen's centre was a standout with his backchecking and hard shooting.

With the second period only 7 mins. and 30 secs. old Ross Wilson and Carsley swung down centre, when they reached their opponents' blue line Wilson shot a pass over to Carsley who let fly for the corner and dented the twine for McGill's only count of the game. The Parkmen swarmed around the Crimson clade and Tennant was given plenty of work in keeping the light behind his nets out, and the period ended with the score still tied.

Shink Scores Again

The Thorpe-men started off the closing frame with a rush and after two minutes of play Shink ripped in a hard shot from just inside the Redmen's defence that Tennant did not see until it was too late and once more the Westenders were in the lead and this time to stay, for five minutes later Huck Welsh, of rugby fame, bulged the Bellmen's twine to make sure of a victory for last year's champs.

The play was fast and clean, only six penalties being given, Trenholme Park getting four of these and McGill two. The teams were as follows:
McGill (1) Trenholme Park (3)
Tennant, Goel, Dahléls
Parent, Defence, Welsh

SENIOR BASKETBALL SQUAD BEATS TOP NOTCHERS EASILY

Lewin And Faulkner Shine On Redmen's Forward Line

THE McGill senior intercollegiate basketball squad turned in a smart performance on Saturday night in an exhibition match against the city league Top Notch cagers, when they downed their opponents to the tune of 56 to 25. Excellent passing and effective shooting on the part of the Red team played a large part in their decisive victory.

Lewin and Faulkner showed exceptional form on the forward line, scoring the majority of their team's points. Lewin sank eight baskets and four free throws to make a total of 20 points, while Faulkner was right behind him to stack up another 18 points. Small likewise turned in an effective game on the forward line, while Calhoun and Rice backed their team in capable fashion at the rear.

Take Early Lead
Despite the opening basket going to Top Notch, the McGill cagers took an early lead in the play and were never in any danger of being headed. The teams were slow in starting, but after about five minutes of play, opened up into some interesting play. Half time score stood at 23-12 for the Redmen. In the second period the efficient Red forward line began to function and a continual barrage of shots resulted in the score being boosted to 56 points. Spiegelman shone for the losers in this period aided by his cohort Schlenger. Final score was 56-25.

The excellent form displayed by the Red team in this match augurs well for intercollegiate prospects. The Redmen have been successful in retaining the championship for the past two years and indications seem to point to its remaining for a third year at McGill. Saturday's game was the last for the collegians until after the holidays when they renew their cage play. A summary of Saturday's game is as follows:

The dance is open to all undergraduates but tickets are on sale only in the Arts Building and at the Union Tuck Shop. Noted Ohio Surgeon Lectures To Alpha Omega Alpha Group or excessive physical work, the lecturer stated. Their cause lay in human relationships, and their explanation in our racial history.

He then went on to discuss this racial history, pointing out that a constant variation in any direction could not be reversed. Thus the dinosaurs, for example, kept growing in size, and finally were exterminated by their own gigantism. In the case of man, the teeth, appendix, taste, sight, muscular power were devolving through disuse. Man is separated from other mammals by constant activity, the speaker continued. Civilized man works all day, and worries all night. Thus the level of expenditure of energy is also a mark of the level of civilization; and the brain aided by the hand and the thyroid which controls the rate of metabolism, might be called the organ of civilization.

The racial memory in the case of man is not as great as it is in the case of other animals. A bird is born with the knowledge of how to build a nest; a boy must be taught how to build a house, therefore he can build a better one than did his predecessors. It is, moreover, the conflict between the frontal lobe of the brain and the primitive instincts inherited over the protoplasmic bridge that makes us what we are; the former desires peace, the latter, war; the former, respect of property; the latter, theft.

Doctor Cerile went on to discuss this racial memory in detail, pointing out its effects on civilized man. The constant, overstimulating strains that he goes through brings on the kinetic diseases, from which he suffers. The cure, stated Dr. Cerile, comes from de-nervation—to cut off the sympathetic nerves running out from it. The method for the cure, he said, had been suggested to him, by his observation of cases of "soldier's heart" during the War.

though he had to fall to it. Rodd rushed for Yale, but missed the net with a hard shot. Parker's shot was well-placed, but Powers took care of it, though Robson's high, twisting shot forced Maurice to his knees. The period ended with McGill leading 1-0.

McGill Increases Lead

Fletcher opened proceedings with a hard drive at Powers. Farmer took the puck, carried it up the ice, evaded the defence and swooped around the net. His pass went out to Gordie Crutchfield, whose shot, however, was miraculously saved by Snyder, in the act of falling, caught the puck in his cupped hands. McGill kept up the pressure, and Hugh Farquharson finally scored, after taking the puck from behind the Yale net, where he himself had taken it.

The rest of the period Yale tried to break into the scoring but were well taken care of by Shaughnessy, Meiklejohn, and Powers. Everyone of the Redmen was playing good hockey, though the going was rather rough at times, due to extremely close checking. Through the superiority of the Redmen was evident throughout the game, every Yale rush was potent with possibilities. Many such imminent goals, however, were averted by the good work of the Red defence and the backchecking of the forwards. When the game was in its last minute—19:54 to be exact—Frank Shaughnessy decided to score the most spectacular goal of the night. Taking the puck behind his own goal, he stick-handled his way through the whole opposing team, right around the defence, and sent an unstoppable shot past Snyder. This completed the scoring, McGill winning 3-0.

On to Harvard!

Playing Harvard the following night at the Boston Garden, the Redmen were confronted with a more experienced and more capable squad. As in the Yale game, the first period went scoreless, though scoring opportunities went begging on many occasions. As, too, in the previous game, the opposing goaler was largely responsible for the smallness of the score. De Lerner, a truly sensational game for the Crimson team, and was ably assisted by the defence of Watts and Martin. Of the forwards Pruyn, Putnam, and Baldwin excelled, while Captain Saltonstall, Beale and Everett performed creditably.

It appears that the Redmen require an incentive in order to obtain goals, for it was only after Baldwin scored from a scramble in front of the Red net, eight minutes in the second period that McGill began to shoot more accurately and break a little faster even than before. Very soon this energetic attack began to take effect. Farquharson shot wide of the goal, passed his own rebound to Gordie Crutchfield, who returned the puck for Farquharson to get his second goal of the trip. This tied the score at 1-1.

Right after the face-off Martin was penalized for tripping by Referee Stewart. Taking advantage of his temporary absence, Farmer took Gordie Crutchfield's pass, and flipped it past De Give to give McGill a 2-1 lead. This was however short-lived, for Putnam scored within a few moments, with a hard shot that evaded Powers, whose vision seemed to have been partially obstructed. This left matters very much tied up at 2-2.

It was at this time that Gordie

the faculties of arts and applied science was carried on. Then zealous students as well as professors attended class arrayed in gowns, and many boasted manly beards.

Many of the students were of more mature years than is the case today for the reason that many had to spend several years after school working to obtain their tuition. Also there was probably more studying done, but that was due no doubt to the lack of amusements in the form of cabarets, movies, radios, junior proms, or even class dances. Imagine the dismay today if no more than about three dress suits could be collected among the students!
